Introduction

With Festival Records recently celebrating its 50th anniversary, it seems appropriate at this time to produce this compendium listing the company's earliest releases. This booklet documents commercially available records issued during Festival's first ten years – between its founding in 1952 and up to 1961, when the U.S. conglomerate ABC-Paramount partly took over the company, and a new consolidated numbering system commenced.

Festival owes much to Les Welch and Ken Taylor, two A&R managers who guided the company through the early vulnerable years, and who began to establish a roster of artists that would revolutionise the Australian music scene. Robert Iredale, record engineer par excellence, also deserves accolades. But perhaps more still is owed to Lee Gordon, the pioneering entrepreneur who, in 1954, began to bring in American artists on package tours, culminating in the Bill Haley tour in January 1957, and who established the Leedon record label. The rise of rock and roll swept all before it, and Festival also climbed aboard the bandwagon, which by this time more closely resembled a runaway train.

The years in question cover Festival's rise from a small independent label, mostly licensing releases from overseas, to its becoming one of Australia's major entertainment players. It documents the birth of Australian rock and roll, beginning, of course, with the inimitable Johnny O'Keefe. During this time, Col Joye, Dig Richards, The Delltones, Lonnie Lee and Johnny Rebb passed through Festival's doors. But Festival Records was not just about Australian rock and roll – many other musical styles, including jazz, classical, easy listening, sacred, musicals and film soundtracks, as well as many other stellar overseas artists also found their way into Festival's ever expanding catalogue. There's a lot of musical history here!

It is hoped that this listing will aid collectors and music historians. Inevitably there are some missing entries, but it is more than likely that most of these releases were cancelled. In any event, should the reader find mistakes or additions, please do not hesitate to get in touch.

Dates and Top 10/40 positions

Approximate release dates are given throughout the listing. Releases making the Top 10 or Top 40 are also indicated. As a reference, I have used David Kent's Australian Chart Book (1940–1969).

A brief history

1952

- June Paul Cullen's Mainguard Pty. Ltd., a merchant banking company based in Sydney, takes over an industrial group. Most of this acquisition is dissolved or disposed of, but Casper Engineering, a record pressing company located in Redfern, is retained. The assets include two rare 10" shellac record presses. Two staff are given the task of establishing a record company.
- October Microgroove (Australia) Pty. Ltd. is established. Douglas Hull and John Dulhunty are the first Directors. Festival Records comes into being, and is first known as 'Manhattan'. Dulhunty hires young sound engineer Robert Iredale, who suggests Les Welch as A&R manager and talent scout.
- November Les Welch signs as Festival's first Musical Director.
- November First issues: Westminister WAL-302, a three LP set of Puccini's 'Tosca' and Manhattan FM 1019 'Meet Mr Callaghan/When I fall in love' by Les Welch.
- December Secretary and Acting Sales Manager C.H. Beavis announces that Festival Records will press and market the U.S. Westminister classical catalogue.

1953

- March Production starts at the new Gladesville plant, a converted picture theatre with 10 presses. The plant has 12 staff, with 5 more in the Phillip Street office.
- August Festival arranges to press the Vox of London label in Australia. Festival also launches a 10" EP series, playing at 78rpm.
- September Festival acquires the catalogue of Record Corporation of America for Australian pressing and distribution.
- October B. Witte is appointed Festival's new sales manager.

1954

During the year, Hal Saunders is appointed Musical Director, later specialising as musical consultant in charge of local recording activities.

- May Festival acquire the rights to the Bell Records catalogue for Australian release.
- June Festival acquire the rights to parts of the U.S. Decca, Coral and Brunswick catalogues.
- September Festival moves from Phillip Street to 223–229 Harris Street, Pyrmont.
- September Walter Elliott is appointed to the newly created position of Australasian sales manager.
- November Festival releases its first 45rpm EPs.

Festival Records, 1952–1961

1955

- March John Sheaffer, Festival's chief recording engineer, travels to the U.S. to learn about new recording technologies
- July Festival releases its first 45rpm single plays, including Bill Haley's 'Rock around the clock', part of the U.S. Decca catalogue. It sells 144,000 copies.
- September Ken Taylor joins as sales manager.
- November Festival acquire the entire rights to the manufacture and sale of the U.S. Decca catalogue.
- December Festival acquire the entire rights to the manufacture and sale of the Coral and Brunswick labels.
- December Paul Cullen is managing director of Mainguard (Aust.) Ltd., Dudley Challingsworth is General Manager of Festival Records.

1956

- March R. Chatto (secretary), Ken Taylor (NSW sales manager), Cyril Beavis (production), Ray Aitken (publicity manager). Festival has 40 factory staffers, 32 staff for advertising, administration and sales, and 3 artists to create covers.
- August Festival set up a pressing service in New Zealand for 78 rpm pop records.
- November Festival arrange a tie-up with Peter Scriven Pty. Ltd. to release Australian artists such as Jim Gussey's Orchestra, Andre Baude, Norma Francis, Tim McNamara, Ned Kelly and Hal Carter's Orchestra.

- Early in this year, Johnny O'Keefe is finally signed by Ken Taylor. Les Welch moves to the Prestige label.
- March Festival lose the rights to Bell Records, which becomes an independent label.
- July Festival records 'Love letters in the sand' and 'Am I blue' by Johnny O'Keefe at a live session at the Sydney Radio Theatre. Festival also signs Vic Sabrino, and grants U.S. Decca the rights to his recording of 'Hitch-hiking heart/Fraulein'. Festival re-launches the Brunswick label in Australia.
- August Jack Argent joins Festival from Coronet Records as General Sales Manager.

1958

- During the year, Col Joye and the Joyboys, Nola Hirst and John Laws are signed.
- March Festival begin a new numbering series, and launch their 'Little Album' EPs.
- May L.J. Hooker buys 75% of shares in Mainguard, Microgroove and Festival Records. The Directorate at this time was: P.A. Cullen (Chairman), E.J. Walker, N.R. Pulver, W.T. Russell, A.T. Anderson, B.M. Dixon and A.T. Barkl.
